

FOOD NETWORK AND KOHL'S LAUNCH BOBBY FLAY-BRANDED KITCHENWARE AND CASUAL ENTERTAINING PRODUCTS

Food Network Star Serves Up First Lifestyle Collection of Cookware, Dinnerware, Gadgets, Cutlery and More

NEW YORK, May 15, 2008 – Food Network and Kohl's Corporation (NYSE: KSS) will debut the Bobby Flay casual lifestyle collection, available only at Kohl's stores and Kohls.com May 15. This launch is an extension of the original collaboration between Food Network and Kohl's, which introduced Food Network-branded kitchenware products in September 2007.

The new Bobby Flay collection encompasses casual lifestyle products, unique grilling items, and the worldly Mediterranean influences of Bobby's culinary point of view. The product assortment includes a diverse selection of affordable cookware, dinnerware, kitchen gadgets, utensils, cutlery, kitchen textiles and barbecue tools. At launch, regular prices will range from $4.99 for an oatmeal bowl to $139.99 for a 16-Piece Plancha Dinnerware Set.

"This collection is quintessentially Bobby Flay – his bold style, culinary expertise, and personality all come through in this exceptional line," said Sergei Kuharsky, general manager, Food Network. "We are proud to have partnered with Bobby and Kohl's to bring our viewers these fresh tools just in time for summer grilling and backyard barbecues."

"I've always loved eating almost anything off the grill. These products will help you grill, cook and entertain anytime, in any weather," said Flay. "My products represent how grilling has become a lifestyle and a part of our culture, all year round. Everyone should have the tools to create amazing food."

Flay's favorites include: the Bobby Blender, with favorite cocktail measurements etched into the pouring glass; 16-piece Plancha dinnerware set, with sun-drenched colors and a terra cotta base; tablecloths, placemats, napkins and bar mop towel sets all in Plancha colors; cutlery including a set of steak knives and a slicing set, and an Acacia Wood collection of large salad bowls, servers and a cutting board that doubles as a cheese plate.

Flay was intimately involved in the development of the line, with assistance from the Food Network Kitchens, ensuring the products are chef-quality for the home cook. The consumer friendly packaging features photos of Flay with tips and instructions, and select products include recipes created by the celebrated chef for use with the item.

"Bobby Flay is an exceptional talent with a true passion for sharing his love of great food and easy entertaining with his fans and Kohl's customers," said Rick Seeger, Kohl's executive vice president/general merchandise manager, home and footwear. "We're pleased to extend our partnership with Food Network by introducing an affordable collection of quality products that delivers on our mission of bringing world-class brands to customers nationwide."

This summer, Flay is the face of Food Network. To kick off grilling season, the celebrated master will start by hosting, "Thrill of the Grill" week from May 25-June 1, featuring an all-new, best-of-the-best Throwdown hour-long special. In July, Flay will launch his first new daytime series in five years, Grill It! with Bobby Flay. On the series, he invites viewers known for grilling prowess to submit videos, via FoodNetwork.com, to show why they should come on set to cook alongside the grilling guru himself. The guest griller's best recipe will be the food of the day, with Flay having no clue what that food will be until they grill it! Viewers can also catch more Bobby Flay on www.FoodNetwork.com/grilling with exclusive webisodes that answer those perennial grilling questions.
